1st Unitarian Church and Parsons Memorial Library, Kennebunk, Me.

Dear Jennie:—

Indeed I was not glad to be at home those awfully hot days. Need for rather hate been at Kennebunkport, for that is a remarkably cool spot. We went to the farm Sun. P.M. and it was even hotter there than here. You wrote that you should think we would have found it pretty dusty riding to the farm this weather, but you know an auto clears the dust behind. We never realize there is any unless we get behind a team or another machine and we don't stay there long. When we took trips to K. with the Conches, we took turns in going ahead, and the machine that was in the rear kept just far enough behind the leader not to get the benefit of the dust. But when we met others we had to watch it, and that was often how autos are thicker there than here. Perhaps the dry weather has affected your throat some. I hope it is much better. East Jaffrey might be a good place for you to teach, for the reason that it is such high land.
